“We are all Bound. This, Nagral of the Coati seems to forget. We are bound to the Tribe. We are bound to the Cults. We are bound to the people. We are bound to the Ukunfazane.”

– Dagrosh of the Cult of Famine

Tailored to wage war and tamers of the wildest beasts the world has ever known, the budding civilization of the tribes of the W’adrbün is claiming its stake in the world – and they have the means to do so.

The W’adrbün represent the first truly collaborative efforts between the Spires; in itself, this is a testament to their design and their capability to perform their intended role. They are not a race of mass-produced, bloodthirsty fighters with overgrown muscles. They are beings designed to wage war – to fight, overcome obstacles, survive, and perform under extreme circumstances, with the mindset, senses, physique, and endurance to match.

They are also not mindless savages that, by some accident of fate, managed to survive the Fall. They were designed to think, calculate, form strategies, and adapt to the planning of their opponents with cunning, guile, creative solutions, and true intelligence. They managed not to simply overcome the fatal dangers of the Wastelands, during and after the Fall, but to thrive and form a civilization from scratch that – while young and perhaps rough – is complex, inventive, values music, and has perfectly adapted to their surroundings and circumstances, enduring for centuries where no man has dared to even attempt to settle.

The humans that so readily dismiss the W’adrbün as savages have only to look to their own past to see just how great the potential of this young race’s destiny is... and how well equipped it is to meet it.

WHAT IS AN ARMY BOOK?

An Army Book serves as your Faction specific Rules companion for Conquest: First Blood. This Book along with the Conquest: First Blood Rulebook will provide you everything you need to Muster and Play your Warband.

This Army Book is divided into the following sections:

- Warband Composition: The Slots that each type of Warrior in your Warband fills, the Rules for how many of each Slot can be selected and the maximum number of Warriors per Regiment allowed are determined by the Total Points of your Battle. TEACHINGS OF THE WASTELAND: Enemies need an additional assisting Warrior to Outnumber a W'adrhÛn Warrior. Example: a W'adrhÛn Infantry Warrior must be Outnumbered three to one before being Outnumbered!

RHYTHM OF BATTLE: Within the whirling cacophony of battle, the W'adrhÛn fight in rhythmic coordination; the very tempo of battle harmonizing with guttural chants and primal roars.

Whenever a W'adrhÛn Warrior Slays an Enemy, immediately gain Chant Markers corresponding to the Slain Enemy's Battlefield Role. All Chant Markers are lost at the End of the Round.

[INFANTRY]: 1 Chant Marker

[BRUTE] or [CAVALRY]: 3 Chant Markers

[MONSTER]: 6 Chant Markers

During W'adrhÛn Warrior's Clash Actions, you may spend Chant Markers to Re-Roll Attacks. Re-Roll a single Attack for each Chant Marker spent. The chosen Dice are Re-Rolled at the same time as all other Re-Rolls.

THE W'ADRHUN WARBAND

Fight for your Queen, Born of Shame

A young race like the W'adrhūn would naturally prize life giving females above all roles in its society. So, what does it say of those females who eschew these roles and chose, rather, to follow the example of their living goddess, becoming peerless warriors and leaders.

Simply that they have earned every ounce of respect from their warriors and every iota of fear from their enemies through sheer talent and application.

Boldly stepping away from W'adrhun orthodoxy and the Ukunfazane's will, some brave and perhaps reckless Chosen have begun preaching that the fallen gods of the W'adrhun are not dead and can be restored.

The fate for these individuals is either death at the hands of the faithful or ascension to a leadership position as tribes tired of the Ukunfazane's oppressive presence embrace their radical teachings. These individuals bring new, forbidden chants and rhythms to the battlefields, extolling the dual nature of their gods bringing for Death and healing as well as War and creation.

While what this might mean for W'adrhun society in the long run is unclear as they all await the living goddess' response, for their foes on the battlefield these new Scions herald a new age of bloodshed and war as the W'adrhun ascend to their true heritage!

It takes a particular mindset to be able to bond with one of the fiercest predators the world has ever known. A certain level of cunning, aggression and fearlessness that, when combined with patience, are the hallmark of the world's greatest commanders.

Unfortunately, patience is in low supply amongst fearless female W'adrhun women who risk their lives to bond with feathered killing machines, so their mounted commanders are just flat out dangerous rather than legendary commanders. Few complain. More than once, at least.

SPECIAL RULES: Trample, Brutal, Impact 2, Cleave 2, Stubborn, Stampede

As the W'adrbün hosts thunders into battle, it is not uncommon for its leaders to lead from the vanguard. While it has been established that male W'adrbün struggle to form stable bonds with carnivorous dinosaurs, this poses no impediment to those who would seek to bond and ride a Ceratopsian dinosaur.

Mounted atop this formidable beast, the Thunder Chieftain becomes a bastion of prowess and rallying point upon the battlefield, the ungainly and brutal nature of his mount's attacks is more than offset by the sheer combat prowess displayed by the greatest warrior in the tribe.

UNIQUE SPECIAL RULES:

SPECIAL RULES: Cleave 2, Counter-Attack, Tribal Leadership

While civil divisions and rule by council might be all well and good for the day-to-day rule of a village, the Ukunfazane was well aware that her fractious children would need a strong hand to hold the tiller when they marched to war. Thus was the position of the Chieftain born:

Elected from amongst the oldest and canniest of W'adrbün warriors and standing outside the village hierarchy, Chieftains wield power only within that confines of a military raid or campaign, but there their will authority is absolute.

UNIQUE SPECIAL RULES:

TRIBAL LEADERSHIP: Friendly [TRIBES] Warriors in Command Range may spend Chant Markers to Re-Roll Failed Resolve Tests.

COMMAND ABILITIES:

FURY OF THE TRIBES: Friendly [TRIBES] Warriors within Command Range gain the Impact +1 Special Rule.

SPECIAL RULES: Vanguard, If it Bleeds We Can Kill it, Barrage 2 (12"), Armor Piercing 2

To call those W'adrbūn who lead the Hunter caste a word as menial as hunter is an insult to the terrifying proficiency they have attained. Predator is the word that can convey their talent. Capable of stalking and slaying almost any beast, their talents and those of their team are bound to be useful to any aspiring war leader.

UNIQUE SPECIAL RULES:

IF IT BLEEDS, WE CAN KILL IT: When this [CHARACTER] or another Friendly Warrior within Command Range perform a Volley Action against a Broken! or Wounded Enemy, they gain the Deadly Shot Special Rule for that Action.

SPECIAL RULES: Bloodlust, Lethal Demise 2, Oblivious
Insensate to Pain

While the W'adrhûn experiment was a resounding success, a certain amount of genetic... divergence is to be expected amongst so young a race. Aberrations are those W'adrhun of the later generations whose adrenal system is simply incompatible with anything other than fighting. Their presence among a troop of W'adrhun Blooded can make them even more lethal on the field, fighting on even when impaled on enemy weapons.

UNIQUE SPECIAL RULES:

Braves are the young W'adrbün warriors who have completed the merciless training regime all W'adrbün must serve and have earned the right to support their Tribe in battle as a warrior rather than a gatherer. Not all beasts employed by the W'adrbün are hulking monstrosities that dominate the battlefield. They have in fact almost managed to domesticate a smaller breed, affectionately called the uzibukhali, (smart claw). Packs of these feathered menaces roam W'adrbün settlements keeping them clear of vermin and smaller predators in exchange for scraps and access to the charnel pits. In times of war they are easily wrangled into packs and unleashed upon the scouts and forerunners of the enemies force, their cunning and ferocity making them more than a match for more powerful opponents.

There are few warriors on any battlefield as terrifying as the chosen priestesses of Death. The deep meditative state they are capable of achieving allows them to elevate their hearing to truly superhuman levels, allowing them to “see” through sound giving them a preternatural advantage on the battlefield.

They flow onto the battlefield with a deadly grace, their blindfolded forms weaving and covering one another in perfect synchronicity, the entire regiment fighting as a single organism.

Entrusted by the tribes as midwives and healers, their medical training makes them deadly foes on the battlefield, their every blow precisely placed to cause the greatest harm possible, severing tendons, rupturing arteries and locking joints with pinpoint precision as they dance away from their foes’ clumsy blows.

While female Speakers display an admirable affinity to the carnivorous Raptors that dwell within their primal lands, they are not the only cavalry the W'adrhün can bring to bear. Riding juvenile Brontoceratops (the elder beasts being too stubborn and docile to be goaded to battle) the Thunder Riders descend on the enemy formations in an unstoppable avalanche of muscle, crest and violence.

The sheer power and impact these mounts can bring to bear as they stampede and trample enemy lines has earned these young riders a terrifying reputation that belies their years.

When unleashed on the battlefield, however, none of these traits are visible as these hulking dreadnoughts wade into the fray and navigate its ruthless and dangerous tides as they were born to do. OPTIONS: Tontorr Chieftain 55 Points

Tontorrs are amongst the largest beasts that the W'adrhün have managed to tame. Normally used as beasts of burden and to aid construction, when a tribe ceases raiding and mobilizes for war, the Tontorrs are often in the vanguard of an army where the sheer mass of a Tontorr makes it a terrifying foe on the battlefield despite their docile nature.

It speaks volumes to the skill and determination of the W'adrhün Speakers that these docile beasts can be such terrifying foes, the sheer size and bulk of these beasts meaning they do not so much fight as simply walk over their foes.

OPTIONS: Drum Beast Scion.....65 Points

The W'adrbün are a deeply musical people, so it comes as little surprise that the beating heart of any Tribe's encampment is the large ritual drums and horns born on the back of a particularly docile and placid Tontorr.

When the tribe marches to War, it does so to the clarion call of its massive horns and the relentless beating of its drums, the motivational power of this music pushing those W'adrbün who fight under its influence to unprecedented heights of courage and violence.

OPTIONS: Winglord.....40 Points

Countless Braves found an unfortunate end seeking to tame adolescent Quatls only to be torn limb from limb by their enraged parents or the beast itself. Once the secret of imprinting was discovered, the number of Quatl riders has steadily risen, but difficulty in acquiring a healthy Quatl egg has stymied their growth.

Loath to risk these rare resources in combat, enterprising riders have learnt to use the beast’s speed to maximum effect, soaring through the battlefield at breakneck speeds then spearing their hapless foe with their custom harpoons. Those that are not instantly slain by the violent impact are invariably slain by the sudden pull, even larger beasts risk being mangled or even slain by a well placed harpoon.
